Clifford Donald Simak, fils d'un immigré tchèque, passe son enfance dans la ferme de son père. Après ses études à l'Université du Wisconsin-Madison, il commence à travailler comme instituteur, toujours dans le Wisconsin. Il se marie avec Agnes Kuchenberg le 13 avril 1929 avec qui il aura deux enfants. Pour améliorer l'ordinaire de sa famille, il collabore à plusieurs journaux locaux et il envoie, en 1931, sa première nouvelle de science-fiction "Cubes of Ganymede", à "Amazing ...

City by Clifford D. Simak is a fix up, or in other words a group of short stories that are connected to form a novel. City was originally made up of eight short stories, but Simak wrote one more story years after the original publication, a story called Epilogue, and this story has often been included in later editions. It's the story of how men lost the Earth, how dogs and robots took over from man, and how that turned out.

City by Clifford D. Simak

Clifford Donald Simak was an American science fiction writer. He won three Hugo Awards and one Nebula Award. The Science Fiction Writers of America made him its third SFWA Grand Master, and the Horror Writers Association made him one of three inaugural winners of the Bram Stoker Award for Lifetime Achievement.

Clifford D. Simak - Wikipedia

City is a 1952 science fiction fix-up novel by American writer Clifford D. Simak. The original version consists of eight linked short stories, all originally published in Astounding Science Fiction under the editorship of John W. Campbell between 1944 and 1951, along with brief "notes" on each of the stories. These notes were specially written for the book, and serve as a bridging story of their own. The book was reprinted

Pour le grand public, le nom de Clifford D. Simak est lié à un livre : Demain les chiens. Pourtant son œuvre est longue, riche et exceptionnellement cohérente dans sa diversité. Simak est l'inventeur d'une science-fiction paradoxalement intimiste où les événements les plus surprenants sont vécus au quotidien par des gens ordinaires.
