In late 2019/early 2020, Coils of the Serpent will publish a special issue dedicated to Gilles Deleuze's "Postscript on the Societies of Control" (which the journal references in its title). Read today, the Postscript seems to anticipate many of the mechanisms and forms of power characteristic of the present age. It is therefore not surprising that many diagnosticians of contemporary culture and society – and, in particular, analysts of late capitalism, neoliberalism, and the digital ...

"The Serpent's Coil" recounts the story of the former Liberty ship "Leicester" which left London in 1948 and due in large part to chronic radio problems encountered Hurricane VII (this was prior to the naming of major storms). After her ballast shifted she rolled precariously and ultimately the crew abandoned the vessel (with several perishing). Astonishingly, the ship did not sink, but continued to drift in the Atlantic Ocean.

The Coiled Serpent, A Philosophy Of Conservation And Transmutation Of Reproductive Energy - C. J. Van Vilet. A while back I found mention this book in a random forum here. Big thanks to you and sorry I forget your user. I don't know why this book isn't mentioned more on this sub. It is potentially the most powerful book on philosophy of SR I've read. There's always the same two or three mentioned regularly on this sub. This one kicks like no other.
